

James Smith Farm

Alt Name: James Smith Log House

Address: 2015 Clements

Local

State v 7/19/90

State Marker v 4/16/91

National

James Smith House, 2002

Historic Overview:

The James Smith Farm, situated in the heart of urban Detroit, is a 1 ½-story, side-gabled, aluminum-sided log house featuring an interior chimney. Although significantly altered, the James Smith Farm is perhaps one of the earliest surviving dwellings in Detroit and one of the city's few remaining log dwellings. The house appears to date to the first half of the nineteenth century, possibly as early as the 1830s.

Text as written on Michigan's Historic Sites Online.